Description:

Lemon cream and pancetta head into pears, pineapple, jasmine, granite and Bunsen burner flint sparks. Tart Granny Smith apple on the finish leaves you with a long, lingering end that just won't quit. Thank goodness.

“Frosty Bison”

An Early October morning I found these bison grazing. The temperature was in the single digits and no wind. Nearby thermal features created a mist that covered everything and reduced visibility. When I was working up this photo I really wanted to give the viewer the idea of how cold it is. There was frost clinging to everything including the bison. The best way I could convey this was to show this image in Black and white. Completely unfazed by the bitter cold conditions, these bison continued to feed on what grass was left only knowing it would soon be covered by snow
