Philosophy:

We harvest this rosé for rosé, meaning we pick it early so it has low alcohol and great, crisp acid. We macerate the Mourvèdre on the skins for about 4 hours and then go straight to press. We then tank settle it off of the gross lees for 24 hours so we can start fermentation with bright and lively juice. The Syrah adds depth and rich mouthfeel, the Cinsault brings out the brighter, racy notes.

The Art & Wine

Carol Walker is the photographer for our rosé label. She exclusively takes photos of wild horses. This wild Appaloosa horse spoke to us because the racy vibrancy in our rosé year after year resembles the wild look in this beast's eyes. Some of the best things are impossible to tame...
